Grenadians Write Brief Accounts of 2500-Mile Trip to Lone Star State

Visit Lower Rio Grande Valley and Cross into Old Mexico—Valley Section Thought to Be Overrated—Describe Things of Interest Seen on Journey—Vast Empire Makes Deep Impression.

(By W. W. Whitaker)

Three of us on our recent trip to Texas were leaving all that was near and dear to us and, hence, were not in such an everlasting hurry to get there. The fourth one, Joe Neely, was driving the car and was going to all that was near and dear to him. The result was that we saw clearly only Houston, where we were forced to spend a day on account of heavy rains. The rest of the terrain on the outward trip was only a greening, brownish. bluish blur where pasture land merged into plowed land and that into the blue waters of the Gulf. So great was our driver's hurry that we were forced to carry our drinking water in bottles in the car rather than stop at convenient hydrants and springs.

I was not trusted at the wheel. Each of the others at various times drove the car, and I would not say which was the better driver, all being good.

We went into old Mexico four times to write postcards to those left at home who, otherwise, probably would never have missed us, and to observe the quaint customs of that backward nation. We were shocked to hear that, in that country, there were open barrooms where vile liquor was sold. It grieves me to record that, through an open doorway, I actually saw the glittering array of multicolored bottles in front of a magnificent mirror; and had not timidity conquered my curiosity I might have entered to verify my suspicion that the place was actually a saloon.

Upon entering a Mexican community we inquired whether they were Federal or Rebel in sympathy; this was done to determine our politics in that community. That was one of the quaint customs that we learned from the Mexicans, who differ from us in that they love to be on the winning side. The Mexicans treated us with unvarying courtesy and consideration.

On our homeward trip we travelled more leisurely and were able to make many observations.

I did not see a single one-horse plow in the state of Texas and I looked for one. The smallest plow cultivated one row at a time; many plowed two, three and even four rows at a time. I never did see but one end to any row and that was the end on the road, the other end being a mile or more away somewhere on the indistinct horizon. The rows were as straight as arrows and equally spaced. In the last analysis we folks here in raising cotton must, in our three furrows to the row methods, compete with those fellows in Texas and elsewhere who cultivate four rows at the time. They thus multiply their manpower by twelve.

We saw plows running on Sunday and are honest enough to realize that there are many worse things done on the Sabbath day. We saw plenty of white women plowing with riding plows, a sight very common there. We passed through one ranch for eighty-five miles and were told that the ranch contained one and one-half million acres of land.

They must have some mighty fine county agents in Texas for I did not see a piece of land in need of terracing that had not been terraced; I did not see a single orchard gone to ruin; I did not see any grown-up ditch banks, torn down fences, tumble-down houses or unkempt premises. If we just had some county agents like those in Texas in Mississippi, with its equitable climate and abundant rainfall, our state would blossom like a rose.

We saw lots of cotton full of squares, corn in full silk and tassel, peas getting hard and watermelons ripening in the sun.

Unless one has had delirium tremens or has not seen Texas, he has "never been nowhere and has never seen nothing". Although we travelled 2500 miles in eight days, most of the distance in Texas, we barely touched a few high spots in that vast empire.

When I say Texas, in all of the foregoing, I wish to exclude that part of Texas east of the Trinity River, for that area, called East Texas, is only a bit of transplanted Mississippi. Their land is our kind of land; their negroes are our negroes; they hunt the same game; catch the same fish; dip the same snuff; chew the same tobacco; and drink the same kind of roasting-ear wine as we do; in fact, they are blood of our blood and bone of our bone, God bless 'em!

Three of us were from Grenada county. The fourth, Robert McLarty, was from Water Valley. Lest his virtues go unrecorded elsewhere I wish to say that, throughout eight days of shifting scenery and changing weather, he was a continuous source of joy to my soul; that, had I seen nothing and heard nothing on the trip, my delightful association with that most even-tempered fellow would have amply reimbursed me for the time and mony expended on the trip.

I can not agree fully with one old gentleman's statement that if he owned Texas and Hell he would live in Hell and rent out Texas. Yet I can say that, with all of Texas's greatness, seen and unseen, I prefer Mississippi.

The so-called lower Rio Grande valley of Texas served as headquarters for us two days while we made excursions into Mexico inquiring into the quaint customs of that backward nation.

(By G. M. Lawrence)

One without prejudice or bias making a trip to the famed lower Rio Grande valley of Texas will return to his home more than ever convinced that all is not gold that glitters and that there is, after all, no place like home. He will, too, more than ever agree with Barnum who said "there's one born every minute".

There is no doubt at all about the Rio Grande valley being a wonderful section of country. There's bound to be an attraction about any place that can make the growth it has made within the past six years from just a scattering few people to the thousands who have cast their lot there and who are confirmed boosters today.

The writer returned last Saturday from a trip to the valley, the farthest point south in the United States with one exception. The trip was made in company with J. H. Neely, W. W. Whitaker and J. Robt. McLarty, the last-named gentleman hailing from Water Valley. We left Grenada Friday morning, April 12, spending the first night in Beaumont, Texas, 474 miles from home. The next day, Saturday, we had to remain in Houston on account of the unprecedented rains which had closed all roads out of that city. Going into Houston we had to drive through water for several miles, the running board of the car being under water many times. Saturday afternoon we spent in Galveston where we viewed the immense sea wall, a wonderful piece of construction work completed a few years ago at enormous expense.

Sunday morning early we left Houston behind, driving mile after mile over country with the view unchanging. We drove through vast cattle ranches, thick with mesquite and cactus, and we passed many farms, large ones to us, but in that country evidently regarded as small places. The day being Sunday evidently did not stop farm work for we saw a great many plows going and many workers in the fields. Corpus Christi, a famous beach resort, through which we passed early in the afternoon, is already thickly peopled with summer tourists.

That evening we took supper in Falfurrias, through which all cars must pass going into or returning from the valley. There is no other way to get there by highway and it might well be called the mouth of the bottle, the long stretch from Falfurrias to Edinburg, the bottle neck, and from there on the bottle itself. Edinburg, the county seat of Hidalgo county, is the first valley town we reached and it was a pretty sight. Beautifully laid out and well illuminated, it gives one a most pleasing first impression. The first town reached on the "main street 60 miles long" is Pharr. The wonderful concrete highway connecting the valley towns passes through Pharr, it being about the halfway point on this 60-mile road.

At Weslaco, east of Pharr, was where Mr. Neely left us to join his family who had been spending the winter there. The rest of us went on to La Feria to make our headquarters during our stay in the valley.

Monday was spent in visiting various farms—or rather groves—and in meeting a few of the dyed-in-the-wool valleyites. We have never been accorded such hospitality as was shown us in the valley and it was with much regret that we took our leave of such excellent people. One of the places that looked better than the majority of the others to us was that of Mr. McLarty's. He has a grove of 18 acres he has owned for five years and it looked to be in excellent condition. In the course of two years more he should begin to get some revenue from it to reimburse him for the great amount of money he has sunk in it. Mr. McLarty is free to admit that he paid several prices for his land but, like others who own property in the valley, he is gifted with that sublime hope and that blind optimism that he will possess eventually a dividend-paying proposition. It is my hope that his fondest dreams will be realized for Bob McLarty is deserving of the best this life affords.

Mr. Neely has a nice-looking place which ranks along with the others in that section. The "valley

COMMISSION FOR BLIND

Something of What It Finds in State.

The Mississippi state commission for the blind has been going right ahead with its work for the past eleven months and has brought to light some very pathetic cases. The value of its accomplishments, even in so short a time, when considered from a standpoint of making those whom it has been able to help, more contented, happier and self-sustaining, cannot be estimated in dollars and cents.

When the commission began its work on the 14th of last May, it was estimated that there were approximately 1000 blind people in the state, but it has been found that the number is much greater than that, as there are over 1600 names now on file in the executive secretary's office and more gradually coming in. The executive secretary has to say of the work—our work is following the teachings of our Lord; for when he was on earth he taught by example that we should open the eyes of the blind, and in so doing, rehabilitate them.

The commission is giving the blind where they are unable to pay for it, treatment by the best specialists and the results of these treatments and operations in a number of cases have been marvelous. One case, an old gentleman, totally blind, who lived down on the coast, was given an operation several months ago and writes that he can now see a boat a mile away. Another, a young lady from northeast Mississippi, who when she was first sent by the commission to an oculist for examination could scarcely see her way, is being treated and is now able to read her own mail and do her writing. There are others to whom some sight has been given, yet there are many others, of course, who can not be helped in this way. These are being given training as rapidly as possible, which will make of them assets to the state instead of liabilities and which tends to make them happy and contented instead of miserable—a burden to themselves and to their friends and relatives.

Besides hunting out the blind men and women, who have never had any training, whatever, and seeing that they get their chance the commission has two, a young man and a young lady in college and is establishing a department for the negro blind at Piney Woods school, a few miles south of Jackson, which will open May 6th. This is something which has never been done in Mississippi before and which should have been done years ago.

We shall give our readers more about the doings of the commission from time to time, as we think this is something they should know about.

ROTARY DIRECTORS CHOOSE OFFICERS FOR NEW YEAR

At a meeting just before the Rotary luncheon Tuesday the newly-elected board of directors met to select officers for the ensuing Rotary year. Their choice for president was B. J. Anderson, for vice-president, L. J. Doak, for secretary and treasurer, C. H. Calhoon, and for sergeant-at-arms, E. E. Wilkins. At the luncheon each of the new officials had just a few words to say in appreciation of the honor conferred upon him.

The incoming president, B. J. Anderson, was unanimously chosen as delegate to the International convention in Dallas the last week in May.

Rotarian Rev. J. C. Greenoe, Baptist minister of Vicksburg, was a guest at the luncheon and entertained the members with a short talk.

An appeal from the Girl Scouts for aid in fixing up their camp at Glenwild was brought to the attention of the club and the matter of employing a coach for the younger boys for a month this summer was brought up. The club is anxious to have J. C. Hathorn, who has met with such success in his work with the high school boys, remain in Grenada for several weeks to give some needed training to the younger boys and several from the Rotary club have pledged themselves to aid in defraying this expense.

WORD FROM YAZOO CITY

Since 1923 there have been all too few communications from Cedar Grove Plantation, Yazoo City, Miss. The publication of the "Biographical Directory of the American Congress" by the joint Congressional committee on printing called forth these words:

"The directory is a credit to the joint committee. Tell Senator Moses I say so. I almost forgive him for being a New Englander and a Republican, and have made up my mind never to let New England secede just so I can keep him in the Union."

Brief though this letter was, prosaic the subject that inspired it, any veteran in Congress could have guessed who wrote it without looking at the signature. It will take more than the passage of six years to let escape from the memories of those who knew him the flavor of the personality of John Sharp Williams.—N. Y. Sun.

OPEN READING ROOM TO GRENADA PUB

Grenada Masons Invite P lic to Enjoy Benefits of I sonic Temple — Enterta ment to Be Provided for V itors.

According to announcements the master of the Grenada Lodg J. B. Owens, plans have been per fected and committees appointe by which it will be possible to have the reading rooms and parlor available each evening for the use of the masons of the town, visiting brethren, members of the Eastern Star and their friends. The Masonic Temple is a thing of beauty and a joy to all who have been laboring for the cause of freemasonry in Grenada.

It was said by many of the visiting brethren at the recent assembly of the Grand Chapter of Mississippi that the building here was a monument to the cause of masonry and a credit to a town thrice the size of this. All Masons are proud of the beautiful temple and the work of the bodies. The membership is anxious that this plant, worth more than sixty-five thousand dollars, be used and enjoyed by all to the fullest extent.

In order that the people of Grenada and visitors may have a part in the use of the building it will be open each evening during the week under the care and supervision of a member of the lodge. Books, magazines, music, games and entertainment will be provided for those who visit the reading rooms. It is hoped that everyone will avail himself of this opportunity to visit the reading rooms, associate with the brothers, their families and friends of the order and enjoy the fellowship of everyone in the community. It is desired that the Masonic Temple be the community center of Grenada for all Masons and their friends.

All Masons and members of the Eastern Star and their friends are invited to attend the opening of the reading rooms of the Masonic Temple Friday evening, April 26, 6:00 o'clock in the Masonic parlor. Music, songs, recreation, games, and lots of fun will be the program of the evening. Come, bring your friends and enjoy the evening of fellowship and association.

COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM BEGINS FRIDAY, MAY 3rd

The Grenada City Schools will begin a program of closing exercises on Friday night, May 3, with the annual Style Show of the Home Economics department under the direction of Miss Katie Mae Dear. The commencement sermon will be preached on Sunday night, May 19, in the high school auditorium by Rev. R. A. Bolling, of Cleveland, Miss. Class Night Exercises will be held in the auditorium on Thursday night, May 23. Graduating exercises and annual address will take place in the high school auditorium on Friday night, May 24. The annual address will be delivered by Dr. J. R. Countiss of Grenada College. Final examinations will run through the week beginning May 20.

"DINNER ON GROUND" AT PEA RIDGE CHURCH SUNDAY

Announcement is made that everybody is invited to Pea Ridge Church next Sunday, April 28, when services will be held at 11:30 and 2:30. Dinner on the ground. The committee tells everybody to be sure to come and bring a basket.

RECITAL AT BIG CREEK

The music, expression and voice pupils of Mr. Clifford Patterson will entertain the public with a recital Friday evening, April 26, beginning at 8:00 o'clock at Big Creek. The public is extended a most cordial invitation.

UNPARALLELED SITUATION

Are Churches In Any Wise Responsible?

The following article is taken from the Southern Methodist of April 7. Coming as it does, almost with President Hoover's plea to the American people for lawenforcement and lawobservance. The Sentinel thinks it fitting to pass the article to its readers:

"A strange situation exists in our land, a situation calling for serious thought and adjustment. "The Churches * never had such numerous memberships, better were so thoroughly organized and equipped, never were more active in operating organizational machinery, never held so many conventions, conferences, institutes, assemblies, etc., never handled so much wealth, never employed so many officials and agents of every kind, engineering, supervisory, educational and financial, and never were so urgent and successful in getting their propaganda before the people.

"Knowing this, one would naturally expect to find the people high-minded and serious, with sin condemned and skulking in the dark; righteousness abounding everywhere; infidelity receiving no tolerance and speaking only under its breath; the home a sweet shelter of devotion and sanctity and all spiritual life at high tide.

"But, behold the facts! However optimistic one may be, facts are stubborn things, and the sane and true must face them.

"Crime was never more bold, more sordid and more vicious; the home was never so abandoned and broken up; marriage was never so much a mere matter of lust and convenience; life was never so cheap and property was never so insecure; infidelity was never so brazen and so blatant; law was never so flouted and trampled under foot; virtue was never so easy and so cheap, and moral standards were never so uncertain and so low. The record is writ large so that even the unobservant can see. Only insincerity and fanaticism can avoid or evade it.

"What is the matter? Something has gone terribly wrong.

"There are those who would dispose of the matter by a mere smile and wave of the hand and a glib 'Oh, it was the war', and they give it no further consideration. No doubt the war had a large part in loosing the basest instincts and passions of men, but thoughtful people recognize another fact, namely: Conditions are getting no better, but rather worse, as we move away from the war.

"Where are the Churches? What are they doing? This moral problem is theirs . Here is their task—and their test.

"What is the matter? Have the Churches been dealing in mere dreams? When facing this acid test, have they discovered that the vaunted gospel is but a chimera? Have they found that after all the Savior really has no power to save, to transform heart and life, character and destiny?

"One of two things is certain: Either the gospel has failed, or the Churches have. Either the plan of

GRENADA IS SOON TO HAVE VITAPHONE TALKING MOVIES

With all the fanfare and interest of an historical event, the Grenada Theatre will introduce to the people of Grenada and surrounding country at an early date the invention that has revolutionized the motion picture industry and enhanced the entertainment value of the screen, Vitaphone talking pictures.

The very same artists who thrilled a New York audience when Vitaphone made its debut in the center of the theatrical world will be present in the Vitaphone presentation program at the Grenada Theatre, where the device which has evoked the praises of scientists, editorialists and artists will be displayed for the first time to the motion picture fans of this city.

Vitaphone, with its roster of famous artists such as Al Jolson, Fannie Brice, Gigli, Martinelli, Talley, Carillo, Dolores Costello, Conrad Nagel, Irene Rich, Van and Schenck, Winnie Lightner, Joe E. Brown, Lionel Barrymore, Mischa Elman, Rosa Raisa, Willie and Eugene Howard and Elsie Janis is coming to the Grenada Theatre because the management desires to give local theatre-goers the best that the amusement world affords. A new thrill, never before known to local motion picture audiences, awaits the people of this city when they see and hear Vitaphone talking pictures.

MRS. JENNINGS SUSTAINS FRACTURED ARM THURSDAY

Mrs. W. J. Jennings sustained a fracture of the left arm near the shoulder joint late Thursday morning when a table on which she was standing toppled and threw her to the floor. She was engaged in doing some housecleaning work.

The break is at one of the most difficult places on the arm to set and it will require some weeks for it to mend.

Mrs. Jennings' many friends deeply sympathize with her over her misfortune and hope that her suffering will be reduced to a minimum.

Washington Letter Gives News Of Happenings at Capital City

Speculation as to What Congress is Going to Do in Special Session—What is the "Relief" to be Given Farmer—Hoover Has Given Public Affairs a Sort of Religious Atmosphere.

Washington, D. C., April 23.—The congress of the United States met in extra session April 15 in accordance with the proclamation of President Herbert Hoover. The prime cause of the session is the demand of the farm leaders of the country, more particularly those of the west and middle west, for legislation which they term "relief". The issue was prominent in the last presidential campaign. The candidates of both the Republican and Democratic parties made sacred promises of what they would try to do. Their diagnoses of the farmers' financial troubles were different and naturally the treatment of both candidates was different. President Hoover having won, it is up to him to apply the medicine and wait for results. He has therefore called the congress in extra session to make good what he promised.

President Hoover's message to the special session was in keeping with his campaign promise as to farm relief. The President also gave attention to the immigration law which goes into effect July 1. He asks that the congress change the law as to quotas.

There is no question, it seems, about the belief that the farmer is in a middle of a bad fix. Reliable data state that 85 per cent of the farms of the whole country are mortgaged. It is said that the federal government has had to take over 30 per cent of the farms upon which it loaned the farmers money through the federal farm loan banks. That looks bad, if true. The cry some fifteen or twenty years ago was that the farmer might be able to borrow money at minimum rates to improve his farm property, and that loan rates by local capital were just more than the farmer could pay and live, hence the farm loan banks. Millions have been loaned farmers through the agency of the farm loan banks, but it appears that a survey has shown that scarcely more than 25 per cent of the amount borrowed went to improve the farms. The farmers used what they borrowed in a large measure to liquidate debts due on their farms, thus it was that large numbers of them found themselves, after having paid off mortgages already existing, standing, as it were, in a dusty place in the road.

One hears here from national legislators many misgivings about the efficacy of what is proposed to do through the congress for the farmers.

It is an old disease but it has never so pushed itself under the nose of Congress as it has at the present. It is a disease that legislative doctors have never had to treat before. The remedy being proposed is a "try-out". It will either kill or cure many believe. The idea is pregnant at the capital, especially among the old guard of the Republicans, that the placing of a tariff on farm imports will cure the disease, but the

McCASLIN ERECTING ANOTHER BUILDING

Ever since A. J. McCaslin identified himself with the business life of Grenada he has been a decided factor in the town's growth and development and has had the good fortune to realize well on whatever he has undertaken, and he is all the time and on all occasions undertaking. The Ford agency, under his management, is recognized as one of the best and most successful in Mississippi.

Several years ago, Mr. McCaslin purchased from the Masonic fraternity the building he is now occupying on the north side of the square, a building which occupies a site upon which a building stood that at one time housed a bank and one of the biggest credit mercantile establishments in this part of the state.

Some thirty-five years ago while that building was being used as a hotel, it was destroyed by fire and was succeeded by the present building erected by Grenada Masons.

The building Mr. McCaslin is now having constructed is just on the rear of the old building and fronts north Main Street. The Sentinel is pleased to note that the business of the Ford agency under Mr. McCaslin's management and ownership has grown to proportions that the new building is needed.

DR. BAILEY CLOSES TERM AS ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT

Dr. C. K. Bailey attended the state dental meeting held at Jackson this week of which association he was president, having been honored with this position at the meeting one year ago. Dr. Bailey has held more or less prominent places in the dental association ever since he began the practice of dentistry, places that have come to him because of his unusual equipment. Grenada has for a long time been at the front in her dentists and in her medical doctors and it is gratifying to the town and community that this splendid record is being maintained.

NASON ATTENDS SHERIFF'S MEET AT COLUMBUS

Sheriff Fred S. Nason attended the state meeting of Mississippi's sheriffs held at Columbus this week. Sheriff Harry H. Dogan of Tallahatchie county came by and the two made the trip in Mr. Dogan's car. Both these sheriffs are young men, comparatively, yet they are making most capable and efficient officers. Mr. Nason is on the job all the time when it comes to getting on the trail of lawbreakers and has been more than successful in running them to their lair after he is on their trail.

GRENADA DEFEATS DREW

In a close game played on the local field Tuesday afternoon the Grenada High School Bulldogs defeated the Drew High School baseball team 5-3. The game was marred by errors on the part of both teams, but was always close enough to be exciting. Perkins, pitching for Grenada, was wild, but was strong in the pinches, letting the delta boys down with scattered hits. The entire Drew outfield showed to advantage.

On Friday of this week the Bulldogs will meet the fast Itta Bena team.

GRENADA WINS SECOND IN DISTRICT EVENTS

The field meet for the North Central Mississippi District was held at the fair grounds in Grenada on Friday, April 19. The platform events were held at the high school auditorium. This meet drew fewer contestants than previous meets but good time was made in several of the track events and the field events were good. The girls showed a great improvement over their efforts in earlier meets.

Winona led in the track and field events, with Grenada second, and Jeff Davis a close third. Winona had a well balanced team which had been in training for several months. Grenada team showed up well considering its short training period. Jeff Davis, with fewer contestants than the two leading schools, showed power in both track and field events.

Person, of Jeff Davis, set a district record for the discus by hurling the disk a distance of 111 ft. 6 inches. Ringold of Winona in the mile and Coleman of Jeff Davis in the half mile ran their events in good time. Elizabeth Rose of Grenada did some fine jumping to win first place in the running broad jump and second place in the running high jump.

GIRLS WIN HIGH HONORS

Misses Faye Gunn and Edna Jackson, of Grenada, have the honor of receiving the first Golden Eaglet badges awarded to Girl Scouts in Mississippi. This is the highest award offered Girl Scouts.

Miss Gunn, 20, is leader of Frances E. Willard Troop No. 2, is winner of 47 merit badges, a junior in Grenada College, president of the college athletic association, president of the college dramatic club and for the past two years has been voted the best all-round girl in the college. She was graduated with the class of 1926 from Grenada High School and in her senior year there was the winner of the citizenship medal offered to a member of the senior class each year. During the same year she won second place among girls in Mississippi in the Keeping Fit Essay contest, conducted by health authorities.

Miss Jackson, 17, is lieutenant of Frances E. Willard Troop No. 1. She has won 51 merit badges, is a senior in Grenada High School, captain of the girls' basketball team, member of volley ball and track teams, was voted best all-round girl in school and has attended Girl Scout Kamp Kiwani for the past three years.

HART HOOD INQUIRES ABOUT GRENADA

The Sentinel feels sure that many Grenada readers will be interested to know just where Hart Hood is and what he is doing. Quite a little while ago he wrote Grenada's postmaster inquiring about things generally and by accident the letter was mislaid and only received attention a few days ago. Hart is with the St. Louis Globe Democrat. He makes his home at 427 S. Clay Street, Kirkwood, Mo. He states that his children are all married and are widely scattered and that he and his wife reside alone. He asked to be remembered to old friends and particularly to his cousin, Miss Belle Ayres.

CHANCELLOR HUME RIGHT—BUT.

We have examined a copy of the University Annual which caused the dismissal of the editors of that publication. Chancellor Hume had good reason to be righteously indignant. He had good reason to feel that the 1929 Annual seriously reflected on the University of Mississippi and, in our judgment, he would have been false to the state and untrue to the trust reposed in him as the head of Mississippi's highest educational institution had he not taken the steps he did. The discipline committee of the University could not have done less than it did do.

There must have been some peculiar quirk in the minds of the Annual editors that prompted them to write the scurrilous things they did about some of the girls of the University; certainly there was not the remotest warrant for coupling up the name of the Dean of women as was done.

The young men must be lamentably wanting in discretion. They evidently suffered a zeal to be ludicrous and funny and a desire to emphasize the morbid and base, to overlap that judgment which should always control when one undertakes to write that which the world gazes upon and which becomes a matter of record for coming generations.

Yes, copy for "the Annual should have been censored". Yet it has never been done and we opine that the seniors would have uttered solemn protest had it been attempted. But the present situation makes imperative and easy the censoring of future issues of the Annual.

—But. We are wondering if the much commented upon loose social life of the day and the gross indiscretions which our mothers and grandmothers would impute to many young women of today did not furnish the basis of what these young men wrote that brought down the sentence of the University upon their heads(?). Many things that our mothers were too modest to discuss and that were regarded too sacred for conversation, are dragged by the social standards of the day into the open. The young men of this day have many-fold temptations that their fathers never had.

Some of the press are laboring under the impression that the editors were expelled. They were suspended. There is a wide difference between the two sentences.

ANDERSON, "NOT GUILTY".

The Weekly Mississippian carried an editorial in its issue of April 5, which indicted the high fire insurance rates in Mississippi. The Sentinel reproduced the editorial and discussed the fire insurance rating law passed by the 1924 legislature which turned over the whole thing of fixing the rates to the fire insurance companies. The editor of The Weekly Mississippian, Hon. A. C. Anderson, was a member of the 1924-28 legislature, and we stated that as we recalled he voted for the law which he now so severely indicts. Brother Anderson pleads "not guilty" as to voitng for the law. We are glad he did not, and cheerfully publish his disclaimer, which he makes in the opening paragraph of his leading editorial in his paper of April 19, and which is followed by our editorial already referred to of April 12.

In our editorial of April 12, we stated that Hon. J. N. Provine did finally get through an amendment to the fire rating law so as to give the insuring public one of the three members of the rating bureau. But we find that we were in error. The Provine measure did get through the lower house, but it did not even see daylight in the senate. Again we wonder how it was that the committee in the lower house to consider fire insurance was practically filled with men either directly or indirectly interested in writing fire insurance or were stockholders in fire insurance companies, in some instances both(?).

Here follows Brother Anderson's "not guilty" plea:

"The Grenada Sentinel of last week produces an article from The Weekly Mississippian about fire insurance rates in this state. That paper charges the editor of this paper with voting for the present rating board law, while a member of the legislature. We did not favor the passage of the law and sought to have the bill changed while it was pending. However it may not be the law that is altogether at fault. There is no reason why a rating board should make rates that are prohibitive simply because they can do so under the law. It would be difficult for the law to fix rates, so human agency must be trusted somewhere."

THE PRESIDENT'S PLEA FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT.

President Hoover made an address before the national gathering of the Associated Press in New York City Monday in which he made an earnest plea to the people of these United States to enforce the laws of the land and to observe the laws of the land.

If the President were not a careful, serious minded man, and were he not one given to measuring well whatever he says or does, he might be regarded as an alarmist. But such is not the case. He is a law observer himself. His speech but still further emphasizes and elaborates what he said about the necessity of law observance and law enforcement in his inaugural address.

There can be no doubt that lawbreaking is carrying this country towards a whirlpool, the dangers and hazards of which no human mind can estimate.

The President states that there are more than 9,000 homicides in this country yearly, and that less than one-sixth of those who kill are ever convicted and that a "scandalously small per cent are adequately punished". He says that the murders in this country are 20 times greater and that the robberies are 50 times greater than in Great Britain in proportion to population.

The President is seeking to arouse the citizenship of the Nation. He commends the newspapers but urges that they seek to be wiser, if possible, in what they say of the laws, and that they gird their loins for strengthening the lawenforcement agencies.

He indicts the glaring crudities of the courts, and renews his promise to name a commission which he hopes will result in leading the country into the broad daylight that will remedy evils which serve to embolden the crime breeder and crime maker.

The President does not fail to remind those in high official and social place of the great duty that devolves upon them to observe the law, and rightly holds that the bigger the business the more does it need and require the strong arm of the law.

The President's address stamps him as one whose mind does not underestimate the finer and better things of the home and the individual life, and that he is but echoing that which Moses proclaimed in the centuries ago from the mountain top when the Ten Commandments were given him.

BANKER LOVE MEETS HIMSELF.

State superintendent of banks, Love, meets himself coming around the corner. Not quite two years ago, as we recall, he gave out an interview, or statement, that should have been well thought out in which he defended the bank guaranty law. His published statement of a few days ago puts him squarely against the law. If we were disposed to be facetious with our banking friend, we would ask him if he is going to stand by his latest pronouncement and how long.

We congratulate him on getting himself right. This paper has never thought the bank guaranty law just in that it sought to make one business institution responsible for another under entirely different management and by different men. We have repeatedly stated this. We do not own a single dollar's worth of bank stock, nor did we ever own any. But we have always acted upon the principle that every business tub should stand on its own bottom.

As to outstanding dues by defunct banks, that's for the bankers and Mr. Love to solve. Assuredly the general tax payers of the state owe no part of it and should not be expected to assume any part of it.

In several different editorials written at different times, we have adverted to the slowness practiced in winding up the affairs of defunct banks and have directed attention to the fact that in most instances the small depositor had sold his interest long before finis is written. We do not have to go beyond the confines of Grenada to demonstrate this.

But we are wondering if the state banking department has not inaugurated some things that appear to penalize the small depositor and the average bank account which will make it more difficult for the department to get a bank guaranty repeal law going(?). Why, Jackson, and we reckon other larger cities of the state, too, is charging ten cents for cashing every check, It has been said that the bank guaranty law brought many dollars from hiding and placed them in banks.

The surest way to guarantee wise and honest management of banks is to place honest and careful minded men at the head of them, and enact a law that makes officials of defunct banks guilty of fraud, embezzlement or theft, as the facts and conditions show, regardless. Sure punishment of reckless and exploiting officials will go a very long way in guaranteeing bank safety.

A news item in Commercial Appeal states that the city of Memphis made a contract for gasoline with the Gulf Refining Co. a few days ago at nine and twenty-three one hundredths cents per gallon. It is fair to assume that the price was at least a small profit. There is a very wide margin between nine and twenty-three one hundredths cents and what the people of Mississippi are paying, 24 cents. The Memphis price was 14.77 cents per gallon less than the Mississippi price.

men who hail from the west assert that they want something more than that. The Democrats are just as much at sea, it seems, as the Republicans, except that they say that to impose a tariff tax is to increase the farmers' troubles rather than diminish them. However, one gathers the impression that Democratic leaders in congress are not going to try to obstruct measures for farm relief offered by the Republicans. It seems to be understood that the Democrats will offer a measure and no doubt many amendments to the measure the Republicans propose, but will not resort to any fillibustering tactics. The Republicans have more than 50 majority in the lower house of congress and a majority of 17, I believe, in the senate.

After farm relief bills are considered, the congressional apportionment bill will come up. It may be that the Democrats will resort to every possible parliamentary move to block its passage if the bill is offered just in the form it was offered at the last session.

The one big objection urged by the Democrats at the last session was that the apportionment bill carried a provision leaving the congressional allotment in its final analysis to the Census Bureau. Under the bill as offered, Mississippi would lose two congressmen. The pity is that there is not somebody in congress brave enough and wise enough to get a law passed that would cut down the number in the lower house of congress to 200. The total membership now is 435. Too many for wholesome legislation. Four congressmen would serve Mississippi just as well as eight.

There is a working spirit prevailing among the leaders of both parties. President Hoover is getting off well. But old heads are saying that a special session of congress has always proven to be embarrassing for a president. But Mr. Hoover promised one and is living up to his campaign pledge.

The President thus far has seemed to create a deeper religious atmosphere around Washington City which is permeating the public throughout the whole country. When taking the oath March 4, he kissed the Bible at these words, "When there is no vision the people perish". So it is that the head of the Nation is getting the people in some degree at least to take a moral and religious inventory of themselves throughout the country. Well, there is nothing the country needs more than a moral and a religious awakening. Wealth is accumulating. Greed, pelf and plunder and the wildest social excesses are chronicled in every quarter.

The affirmation by the U. S. supreme court of the sentence of 3 months in jail on Sinclair, one of the oil magnates, for his refusal to answer questions by a senate investigating committee, is having a wholesome effect. Sinclair's attorneys are taking another shot before they allow their client go to jail, but the propondenant opinion is that this rich magnate will have to spend three months in jail. Now if he does, let it be hoped that he will not be allowed to make a mockery of his confinement. He should be locked up and made to take his turn just as all other prisoners. He is thrice guilty as compared to many others serving a longer sentence it may be safely asserted. He knew better. He thought his wealth and the great interests behind him would save him, but in this he was mistaken, it seems.

There is another thing about the Sinclair sentence that is attracting general concern: He was an intermediary; he passed some of the filthy lucer. Doheny has gone scotfree. Fall who accepted a bribe of over $200,000 while serving in the President's cabinet, has never been sent to prison; Daugherty, who was also a cabinet officer and who was a party to the swindling of the government, slipped through the courts; Denby, Secretary of the Navy, who approved the oil deal swindle, seems to have been regarded as too much of an imbecile to have shared in the booty and was never haled before the courts. Thus when one man out of the whole gang of government swindlers gets a little jail sentence of only three months, the thought is that he should serve the sentence. Mind you now Sinclair was not convicted of aiding or abetting the steal, but for refusing to talk to a senate committee. If what Sinclair refused to do before a senate committee were allowed to go unpunished, then future congressional investigations would be futile, silly and productive of no good.

It is generally believed around Washington that both Republicans and Democrats are going to insist that congressional attention be given to Wall Street gambling, and that the Federal Reserve Banking system be asked for reasons for allowing so many hundreds of millions of dollars to be dumped into the gambling mill, or stock swindles, in Wall Street. The matter ought to be investigated. The speculators who insist on the right to fleece the little lambs and who decorate Wall Street just as buzzards decorate the trees around a dead carcass, should not be allowed to use a suction pipe to draw money from all parts of the country. The whole country could get along mighty fine, many are thinking a great deal better, if Wall Street did not exist. It remains to be seen whether or not congress has the backbone to beard the mighty lions of finance in their dens.

The Volstead Act will, of course, be cussed and discussed at the special congressional session, but the consensus of opinion about this law is to give President Hoover time to try his hand at law enforcement. It is understood that the President is going to name a committee to study court procedure and to make a survey of what is needed to be done to stop the crime wave. There can be no doubt about Mr. Hoover's being sincere, and it is generally agreed that he should first be allowed to see what virtue there is in using better what is already had rather than inaugurating a new experiment. The state of Wisconsin voted just a few days ago to repeal its prohibition enforcement act. This step upon the part of a sovereign state has served to bring the question of prohibition enforcement more acutely to the front again. One can read, it seems to me, that the future will develop some amendments to the Volstead Act that will insure better and saner enforcement. It is no uncommon statement to hear it stated that, "the law should be amended by its friends" and "never by its enemies". The old saloon may wriggle and wriggle in its putrid grave but it is dead certain that it will never be allowed to come back. But one cannot get away from the necessity of alcohol in drugs. It is also difficult to argue against the worth of good whiskey in many acute illnesses. The fact that many states are really conniving with the still runner and bootlegger, has not served to increase the respect of the more thinking element of the people for these gangsters that would scuttle the ship of state and burn the Capitol, if need be, to satisfy an appetite that has hastened to an early grave its thousands and that has landed its thousands behind prison bars,

One frequently hears the statement in this great city these days that there is just a difference of tweedle dum and tweedle dee between the Republican and Democratic parties as at present constituted. "They say" that leading Democrats in certain quarters are crying for a protective tariff, and that the great wealth accumulated because of and since the World War, has served to cause the Democrats to worship at the shrine of a moneyed aristocracy just as the Republicans are charged with doing. There are signs that this is true, but your correspondent believes that it is but a passing phantom. It is true that the Democrats sorter backed up on the tariff in the last presidential campaign, but if it was worth anything to the party, the vote did not disclose it. The party which does not stand for a principle and which does not show itself to be the friend of the great masses, does not deserve to live. The founder of the Democratic party, Thomas Jefferson, was the spokesman and advocate of the masses when this government was launched, and when Democracy gets away from Jeffersonian principles it gets into the wilderness.

"Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" were words that caused Blaine's defeat in 1884. These three Rs, togetther with great wealth, caused Democratic disaster in 1928. The party might have won over wealth, but the way the three "Rs" were coupled up was too much load for it to carry.

College Has Second Homecoming.

This past week-end Grenada College had its second homecoming. Some of the guests began to arrive Friday afternoon and that evening were entertained with a graduate piano recital given by Miss Irene York, pupil of Miss Jesse May Gill. For this occasion the stage was beautifully decorated with the flowers sent to Miss York who performed very admirably. Saturday morning was spent registering, greeting old classmates and going over the campus to note the favorite old spots and the numerous changes and improvements.

At one o'clock the Missionary Society of the Methodist church served a luncheon to the Alumnae Association at which there were 105 former graduates present. After an interesting and inspiring talk on "The Advancement and Needs of Grenada College" by Dr. J. R. Countiss, the president, officers for the next year were elected as follows: president, Miss Frances Broadstreet; vice president, Mrs. Nancy Jaco Martin; secretary and treasurer, Miss Thyra Pepple. After the conclusion of the luncheon, there was a very exciting basketball game between the varsity and the Alumnae teams, with the former coach, Mr. J. E. Stephens, here to encourage his old players. The varsity won by a mere two points. The college entertained the guests at dinner in the college dining room after which the Home Economics department gave a reception for the guests to meet the faculty.

The entertainments for the alumnae culminated in the delightful comedy, "Quality Street", by Sir James Barrie, presented by the Players' Guild under the direction of Miss Ruth G. Bale. This performance added another decided success to the Guild's already enviable reputation. Miss Bale and the members of the Guild have made quite a name for themselves with their acting in this section which was shown by the large crowd which filled the auditorium for the perfomance. The play went off exceedingly well with some very exceptional acting on the part of some of the cast: Miss Elizabeth Capps as Phoebe and Miss Fay Gunn as Valentine Brown showed professional skill in their work and as well looked their parts to perfection; each one interpreted her character with an insight and artistry not often found in amateur actors. Besides these honorable mention must surely be made of Miss Mary Miller Murry as Susan, Misses Lulu Mae Provine, Birdie Jones, and Rivers Elders as old maid neighbors. Vieing with the leading lady and man were the children in the school scene all of whom were costumed adorably and acted as well as they looked. The participants for these parts were chosen from the children of Grenada. The stage was particularly attractive for this play with its blue and white scenery and furnishings on which a great deal of careful work had been expended.

The director, Miss Ruth G. Bale, deserves great praise for this creditable performance. The orchestra of the college under the direction of Miss Lillian McGrath, furnished music before the play and between acts. There were also some clever little skits between acts the first of which was "No, John, No" acted and sung in costume by Miss Ione Mae Liller, director of music, and Miss Vera Nelle Boone; the second was a chorus and dance of old fashioned ladies and gentlemen to "The Old Fashioned Garden".

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Elder, accompasied by their oldest daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Covington, and Mrs. Eason, all of Coldwater, were in Grenada last Sunday. Mrs. Elder came down the day before to be with her daughter, Miss Rivers, who took a prominent part in the play at the college auditorium Saturday night. The Elder family is widely known in north Mississippi and there is none who stands higher for moral integrity and genuineness of purposes.

CARD OF THANKS

Words are inadequate to express our appreciation of the thoughtful acts and expressions of sympathy during the illness and death of our loved one.

To the many who came in our darkest hours we extend again our deepest gratitude.

Farewell Party for Mrs. Neely.

Mrs. P. C. Spencer entertained with bridge Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harold Tobin complimenting Mrs. J. H. Neely who is returning soon to Grenada, Mississippi after spending the winter here. At the interesting games of bridge Mrs. Thos. F. Rives received high and Mrs. Harold Pugh received consolation. Mrs. Neely was presented with a lovely gift. A delicious salad course was served to the following: Mrs. J. H. Neely, Mrs. Harold Pugh, Mrs. J. C. Friday, Mrs. W. S. Ray, Mrs. R. H. Cone, Mrs. J. Pepper, Mrs. D. K. Henry, Mrs. Thos. F. Rives, Mrs. E. K. Ewing, Mrs. T. G. Cresner, Mrs. Harold Tobin and Mrs. A. C. Gruz, of Progresso.—Weslaco (Tex.) News.

PART-TIME CLASS

Any person, single or married, interested in taking up the study of commercial work, shorthand and typewriting, should see the Superintendent of City Schools as soon as possible. Every session we organize a class to meet the needs of those who cannot attend school but who wish to learn shorthand and typewriting. The class cannot exceed 10 in number. An incidental fee of $2.00 a month is the only charge except the cost of material.

Yours very truly,
JOHN RUNDLE

4444 DIVORCES IN 1928

Dr. R. N. Whitfield of the state department of health gives the following statistics on divorces in the state for the year 1928:

In the list of causes for the actions, which the report shows were contested in only 112 instances recorded at the bureau, cruel and inhuman treatment formed the basis of 40 per cent of actions by white persons and desertion led the cause list for negroes.

Wives received the bulk of decrees in the white classification, while husbands received most in the negro count. Divorces numbering 1731 were given in favor of the wives and 1268 in favor of the husbands.

An interesting study is given in the report regarding children affected. Two-thirds of divorced couples had no children. 500 had but one child, 250 had two, and 234 three or more.

APPEARANCE BIG AID IN SELLING VEGETABLES

Jackson, Miss., April 22.—It is evident to everyone who comes in contact with people from the different trucking sections of the country that there is more interest in things which have to do with the development of quality vegetables and standard packs than there ever has been before.

Some may raise the question as to whether or not this is an actual need or somebody's theory or fancy. It is probably true that a good many vegetable growers have not, as yet, come to a full realization of the advantages of producing and placing on the market vegetables of quality put up in an attractive manner.

So long as there is a demand for all classes of vegetables sufficient to absorb the available supply readily, the question of quality is not of so much importance; but during the past few years most of the standard vegetables have at certain seasons - particularly when Mississippi is on the market - been produced in sufficient quantity to more than supply the demand. Quality and attractive appearance are of much greater importance during such periods of heavy production than during those of light production. It naturally follows that attractive, high-quality vegetables will find a more ready market than those that are not attractive or are of poor quality.

Those who deal in vegetables too often think their responsibility is over when a sale has been made. It is, of course, important to so put up vegetables that their appearance, including the package and grade, will appeal to the trade. The lack of proper attention to these details will make the sale difficult and the price usually much lower. When competition becomes keen and discriminating, as is always the case during periods of over-production, there is another responsibility which the grower and dealer should realize that is, to satisfy the consumer, who, in the last analysis, exerts the greatest influence on the market.

If consumers are pleased with a certain pack vegetables because of appearance and quality, they will continue to buy freely of those particular vegetables, and thus help to increase the demand for them. If, on the other hand, the consumer is displeased with purchases made, he is certain to buy something else thereafter. The sections supplying the markets with poor quality vegetables when competition is so keen as it is today cannot hold their own with sections that are meeting the quality requirements of the market. It is up to Mississippi to meet these requirements, if we hope to continue to produce vegetables at a profit.

AN ALL-STEEL REFRIGERATOR
THE FIRST!
...THE ONLY ONE!

THIS General Electric is the only refrigerator built entirely of steel! Think what that means! It is sturdy and durable beyond anything that you ever believed a refrigerator could be.

This small-family model freezes a generous supply of ice... and in a shorter time. One tray freezes in two hours, both trays in four. It uses less current because the cabinet is so efficient that cold does not leak out and heat does not creep in.

And, of course, it has the exclusive advantage of simplified mechanism, enclosed in an hermetically sealed steel casing and mounted on top. This leaves the greatest area available for food storage and makes possible the up-on-legs model which is so easy to clean under.

In operation it is extremely quiet. It never needs oiling. It is as portable as a piece of furniture. You just plug it into any convenient outlet. See all its unique features yourself. Come in today. And ask about the convenient plan on which it can be bought.

Listen in on the General Electric Hour, broadcast every Saturday evening, 9 to 10 Eastern Standard Time, over the N. B. C. network of forty-two stations.

The U. S. A. is only a few minutes wide

THE Bell System is ever busy reducing the width of America and the distance between cities. For example, in the last five years 350 major improvements, as well as thousands of others whose aggregate importance mounts high, have been made in telephone central office equipment.

Improved operating practices have eliminated the necessity of your "hanging up" and being called back in 95 per cent of out-of-town calls, adding new speed and ease to your long distance service. You hold the wire and the operator does the rest.

Since New Year's Day, 1927, the average time for completing all out-of-town calls has been cut 35 per cent and at the same time the per cent of error has been further materially reduced.

There is no standing still in the Bell System. Better and better telephone service at the lowest cost is the goal. Present improvements constantly going into effect are but the foundation for the future's greater service.

He is a progressive farmer, and an intelligent gentleman. His bride is a beautiful and estimable young lady. Their friends wish them happiness and prosperity through life.

On Sunday afternoon, April 17, at 4 o'clock, Mr. R. W. Maxey and Miss Daisy Williams were united in wedlock by Rev. J. W. Lee. The groom is a citizen of Rankin county, and is spoken of as a popular, genial and high toned gentleman, and a farmer by profession. The bride is the lovely and excellent daughter of Mr. R. H. Williams, of Grenada. The Sentinel extends to the happy couple its best wishes.

Mr. John B. Ross, a bright lawyer and a highly educated gentleman, of Memphis, was in attendance at Chancery Court here this week.

Mr. Ed Perry and wife, of Williamsville, were in Grenada one day this week, whence Mr. Perry went to Jackson, on business.

The annual meeting of the State Medical Association convened in Jackson Wednesday. Dr. J. W. Young, of Grenada was in attendance.

There will be an ice cream and strawberry festival given by the Grenada graded public school for the benefit of the public school library fund, at the court house, Friday, April 29th, beginning at 5 p. m.

Miss Mamie Flake, one of Water Valley's most charming young ladies, is visiting friends and relatives in Grenada this week.

Dr. J. P. Broadstreet was in attendance at the annual meeting of the State Dental Association held in Jackson this week.

W. E. Smith, the old reliable jeweler, cordially invites one and all to call and see him at his new place of business, where he is now better prepared than ever.

Sheriff L. I. Rice and Attorney E. D. Dinkins were in Grenada Monday, the guests of Mr. O. F. Lawrence. They are both popular and genial gentlemen.

Chancery Court convened in Grenada on last Monday, with Chancellor Wilson presiding, and is still in session at this writing. Quite a number of important cases have been disposed of.

Miss Susie Gates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gates, of this county, was married at Iuka, Miss., on April 18, to Mr. James Dean, of that place. Miss Gates is a young lady of rare worth. We learn that Mr. Dean is a young man of excellent character, and we wish for the happy couple much sunshine and joy.

Miss Lizzie Wilbourn, of Torrance, spent a few days in Grenada this week, the guest of Mrs. W. S. P. Doty.

Rev. W. S. Holmes and Mr. A. C. Leigh attended the Episcopal council at Vicksburg this week.

CANNOT HUNT SQUIRRELS DURING MONTH OF MAY

Hunters should bear in mind that it is now unlawful to hunt squirrels during the month of May as this month is now a closed one by legislative enactment. Heretofore the month of May was open for this sport. The squirrel season opens on the first day of October and closes on the last day of December of each year.

The funeral rites of E. E. Pettebone who died April 15th were solemnized last Sunday at Vincent M. E. Church of which he had been a member for more than 50 years. The Eastern Star of which he was the founder and was Grand Patron during all the years from its beginning up to his death, had charge of the service. Visitors from over the state who compose the Grand Lodge officiated in the ceremony. Rev. G. M. Chisholm delivered the funeral sermon. The ceremony by the Grand Lodge was a very impressive one and was very befitting in honor of its founder. After the service at the church a long procession followed the remains to the Masonic Cemetery where they were depositd after the masonic ceremony was said by the officials of Booth Lodge of which he was a member. Quite a number of people from out of town were present and witnessed the occasion.

Representatives from Meridian, Jackson; Hattiesburg; Laurel, Canton; Durant, Kosciusko; Como, Sardis, Memphis, Greenwood; Winona and other towns were present at the funeral of E. E. Pettebone.

The Signs of the Times

From the beginning of time history gives a record of signs and wonders. They evidently have some value. God in dealing with his chosen people, Israel, gave them signs on the face of the skies, wrote them on the earth, and in the waters and to them it had its meaning. Sometimes they would observe them and profit by them and when they did not observe them they lost out and disaster followed. The prophet Joel, more than 800 years B. C. referred to the terribleness of the judgments of God because they refused to observe the commands of God and listen to those who were close enough to him to know the significance of the times. We do not pose as a prophet or even the son of a prophet, but we can forecast the results of some of the things that will eventually come to the people of our group. When we see them moving from the farms to the industrial centers, paying high rents, trying to follow all of the fashions and in idleness a great portion of the time we wonder how long this condition can exist and what will be the ending. The labor saving devices that have been invented, manufactured and put upon the market are fast taking the place he used to occupy in the struggle for a livelihood. Then, too, jobs that were regarded as a negro's job are no longer his to claim because others are acceptable competition. We have no fight to make and no objection to this procedure, it is perfectly natural but what are we doing or preparing to do to find a way out of this industrial, economic tangle. At present we do the lowest and at times the hardest part of the work for the least pay. The boss gets the money by seeing that we work hard and the more work he can get out of us the better pay he gets. Is it fair, is it just? The fairness or the justice is not a question. It is the environment, the condition and these must be faced. We must take a drop upon ourselves and begin to think out a way to offset this disadvantage. The soil offers the opportunity with its various sidelines, when we can enter the trench and fight it out. Back to the farm should be the slogan. Here we can tickle mother earth and make her laugh with plenty and give us comfort, independence and happiness.

NOTES FROM THE DELTA STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

Delta State Teachers College, Cleveland, Miss., April 23, 1929—

The construction of new buildings is progressing rapidly. Brick is now being laid for the dining hall and the frame work for the dormitory and administration building is about ready for similar work.

The Delta State Teachers College has just sent out about 3500 bulletins for the summer term. These bulletins contain the college calendar, the names and qualifications of all members of the faculty, and a statement of the work to be offered, with special emphasis on the summer courses.

Enrollment to date for the session 1929-30 is 275. The spring quarter has varied little from the preceding quarter in the number of students enrolled.

The class in Farm Architecture, in charge of Prof. A. L. Young, has been doing interesting work in the drawing of plans for farm architecture and in the laying off of farm tracts. Although this course is comparatively new in the curriculum its class enrollment is one of the largest of the college.

Middle Life Troubles

"ABOUT twenty years ago, my health was very bad," says Mrs. Mat Howard, of Terrell, Texas. "I was passing through a critical time in my life, and I suffered a great deal. I was not at all strong, and my nerves got all upset. I had hot flashes, and sometimes would get suddenly so faint I could not stand up. My head would whirl, and I could not see a thing. I would have to lie down for hours at a time.

"I improved so much after I had taken Cardui for a while. I continued the medicine for some months, until I had passed the critical period. Since then, I have given Cardui to my five daughters. All of them have continued the use of Cardui in their homes. We have all been better for having taken it."

Lesson for April 28

THE SUFFERING SERVANT OF JEHOVAH

LESSON TEXT—Isa. 52:13-53:12.

GOLDEN TEXT—With His stripes we are healed.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Love for Us.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Love for Us.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Our Salvation Cost.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Suffering Savior.

This prophecy is the grand center of the Old Testament. The bond servant of Jehovah with great wisdom gloriously executes the divine purpose at the cost of great suffering.

I. The Servant's Triumph (52:13-15).

By the servant here is meant the coming Messiah (42:1).

1. His wisdom (v. 13).

"He will deal prudently," for his name is "Counsellor" (9:6). He was filled with the spirit of wisdom and understanding (11:2). Who has ever shown wisdom equal to that displayed by Jesus Christ?

2. He shall be exalted (v. 13)

He was to be extolled and magnified because he was the "Mighty God (9:6), even Immanuel." Because of Christian devotion to His task of redemption, God has highly exalted Him and given Him a name which is above every name (Phil. 2:9).

3. The appearance of the Servant (v. 14).

Because of His marred "visage," He wholly disappointed the expectation of the carnal minds who looked for outward signs of royalty and worldly greatness. Jesus, as Jehovah's servant, was tortured and beaten by men as He went about doing the business committed to Him, and His very face and form were scarred and twisted (Matt. 26:67, 68).

4. The issue of His ministry (v. 15).

"He shall sprinkle many nations." This reveals Him as the great High Priest sprinkling the nations with His blood, cleansing them from their sins. Just as the people were astonished with the silence of Jesus in the midst of His shameful treatment, so shall the kings and great men of the earth be dumb before Him when the suffering Servant shall be exalted.

II. The Servant Despised and Rejected (53:1-3).

1. The unbelief of the Jews (v. 1).

(1) They disbelieved the words of the prophets.

(2) They did not recognize the hand of the Lord in the miracles and wonders which He wrought.

2. The origin of the Servant (v. 2).

He sprang out of the stump of Judaism. The sad condition of the people at that time is expressed by "dry corn."

3. The Man of Sorrows (v. 3).

He was so afflicted that His very appearance was repulsive. They hid as it were their faces from Him.

III. The Vicarious Sufferings of the Servant (53:4-6).

1. His griefs and sorrows were ours (v. 4). This awful suffering was looked upon by the world as occasioned by sin—"we did esteem Him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted."

2. He was beaten for us (v. 5). That which was our due was meted out to Him. Observe the words, "wounded," "bruised," "despised," "stripes"—how awful they picture His treatment, and yet the pronoun "our" shows that His suffering was vicarious.

3. The reason for (v. 6).

All humanity, Jews and Gentiles, had gone astray. God laid upon Him the iniquity of us all.

IV. The Death of the Servant (53:7-9).

1. The strange silence (v. 7).

He opened not His mouth. He went as a lamb to the slaughter. "He answered them never a word, insomuch that the governor marveled greatly" (Matt. 27:14).

2. Unconcern of multitude (v. 8).

They failed to discern the fact that He suffered in their stead.

3. Buried with the wicked and the rich (v. 9).

The prophecy was fulfilled in His crucifixion between two thieves and burial in Joseph's tomb.

V. The Servant's Ultimate Victory (vv. 10-12).

1. His sufferings expressed the divine will (v. 10).

The Lord Himself laid this burden upon Him, and through His sufferings the law was vindicated and redemption was accomplished.

2. A spiritual progeny resulted from His death (v. 10).

The fundamental law of the universe, which is life out of death, found supreme expression in His death on the cross (John 12:24).

3. Through death shall come to realization His fondest hope (v. 11).

He shall see the travail of His soul and shall be satisfied.

4. The divine reward (v. 12).

The divine Conqueror shall share the spoils of victory which by a strong arm were secured.

A RESOLUTION

The following resolution was introduced, its adoption moved and seconded and put to a vote. Aldermen E. C. Neelly, W. E. Jackson, J. H. Murray, H. L. Honeycutt, L. C. Proby, voting for its passage, there being no votes against same, and the following aldermen being absent and not voting, viz, J. P. Pressgrove, it was declared duly adopted and ordered entered on the Minutes as follows:

A Resolution providing for the issuance of twelve thousand five hundred dollars of refunding bonds of the City of Grenada, Mississippi, to take up and pay off bonds of said city maturing on July 1st, 1929, issued July 1st, 1909 for the purpose of enlarging the white public school building of said city.

Whereas on July 1st, 1909, the city of Grenada, Mississippi, did issue its bonds to the amount of twelve thousand five hundred dollars for the purpose of enlarging and adding to the White Public School Building of said city, which said bonds will mature and become due and payable on July 1st, 1929;

Whereas none of the principal of said bonds has been paid but all of said bonds are outstanding against said city and are unpaid and will become payable on July 1st, 1929;

Whereas there are no funds in the city treasury with which to pay the principal, or any part of the principal of said bonds, and it is therefore necessary that the city shall borrow a sufficient sum of money with which to pay said principal of said bonds by the issuance, as provided by law, of refunding bonds.

Be it, therefore, resolved by this Board in regular session:

Sec. 1. That for the purpose of raising funds to take up and pay off the principal of twelve thousand five hundred dollars of said bonds aforesaid, it is the intention of this Board at its regular May, 1929, meeting, to be held at the Mayor's Office in said city on May 6th, 1929, at 7:30 p. m. o'clock to issue the negotiable, coupon bonds of said city to the amount of twelve thousand, five hundred dollars. Said bonds shall be dated July 1st, 1929, and shall be sold for not less than par and shall bear interest at a rate not greater than six per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the first day of January and July, and the proceeds of the sale of said bonds shall not be used for any other purpose than the purpose for which they will be issued. Said bonds shall mature and become payable annually, with all maturities not longer than 25 years, and with not less than one-fiftieth of the total issue to mature each year during the first five years of the life of said bonds, and not less than one-twenty-fifth of said total issue to mature annually during the succeeding ten year period of the life of said bonds and the remainder to be divided into approximately equal payments, one payment to mature during each year for the remainder of the life of said bonds, as provided by law.

Sec. 2. That this resolution be published in Grenada Sentinel, a newspaper published and having a general circulation in said city, for three weeks, as provided by law, and unless twenty per cent. or more of the qualified electors of said city shall on or before May 6th, 1929, at 7:30 p. m. o'clock file a written protest against the issuance of said bonds, they will be issued without submitting the question of the issuance thereof to an election,—the Board hereby finding, declaring and adjudging that the City of Grenada, Mississippi, is, in fact and by every census of its inhabitants, a city of less than twelve thousand inhabitants.

Sec. 3. That this resolution take effect and be in force from and after passage.

Approved: W. S. P. DOTY, Mayor

Attest: WILLYE Y. WEST, Recorder

bug" has bitten him deep for he owns a handsome residence in Weslaco, two residence lots and is even now planning to invest several thousands in business property there.

We saw J. J. Horton, a former Grenadian, who is farming 68 acres north of Weslaco. He owns 43 acres and is renting the balance. Mr. Horton is one of the few men in the valley we found actually at work. His land represents an investment to date of $27,000 and he has recently had a tentative offer of $30,000 for it. His taxes amount to between $13 and $14 per acre, including irrigation, school tax, road tax and all. His house is situated just at the crossing of two concrete roads and no more ideal location could be found. Although Mr. Horton didn't say so, the writer will wager that he will return to Grenada should he sell his land.

The valley towns are all laid out carefully. Wide streets give plenty of room for automobile traffic and parking and the homes, most of them new and of various types of architecture, add much to the beauty of the towns. New and modern hotels in all the towns provide ample accommodations for visitors.

One of the largest and most progressive towns in the valley is Harlingen, a city that has had a miraculous growth in the past five or six years. It now has a population close to 20,000 and is said to be still growing. Its municipal auditorium seats 3500 people and would do credit to any town much larger in size. Monday night Schumann-Heink gave a concert in this auditorium and almost every year Harlingen has its opera season. Several splendid hotels are there and they are said to be taxed to capacity at all times.

Of course, one would not think of making a trip to the valley without crossing into old Mexico. Our first trip across was at Brownsville after we had driven through and seen Fort Brown, one of the government army posts. Maybe, in this article, we should just say that "we also visited old Mexico" but the old market in Matamorras was of so much interest that an account of our trip would be incomplete without trying to give a brief description of this market. It covers a space of about two city blocks and in the market one may find displayed in the various booths or stalls articles of every conceivable kind—dry goods, shoes, clothing, fruits, vegetables, nuts, curios, magazines, meats, bread, in fact, it is the shopping center of Matamorras. One could spend hours in this interesting place without tiring. A brief pause at one of the booths means one must buy something or spend some time trying to explain to a Mexican who can't understand a word of English that he is "just looking". It was strange to us that so few of the Mexicans could speak English. They are just across the river from the United States and a great deal of their trade comes from Americans but they might as well be in Europe for all the knowledge they have of the English language.

At Matamorras another interesting sight was the old cemetery. We saw in one corner a great stack of rotting coffins from which the bodies of the dead had been removed and cremated because surviving relatives did not or were unable to pay rent on their lots.

We crossed the Rio Grande also at Rio Rico, Mexico, where there is nothing except a few saloons and a dog racing track and at Reynosa, an old and interesting city. The Mexican towns look positively filthy. The buildings are old and dirty and the walls of many appear to be crumbling. The towns have no sewerage system which undoubtedly accounts for many deaths. The plaza—or square—in the center of town is paved but one finds very little paving in other parts of the towns. The majority of the populace looks dirty and unkempt and, altogether, Mexico along the border does not give a pleasing impression.

Wednesday morning we left the valley headed homeward. Mr. Neely did not accompany us, remaining to bring his family home. The first night out we spent in San Antonio, one of the most interesting towns in Texas. There is located the Alamo, made famous in history as the place of the unsuccessful stand of Texans and Americans against the Mexicans in 1836. There, too, is the old Buckhorn Saloon visited by every stranger to San Antonio. One sees in the Buckhorn perhaps the world's most famous collection of mounted animals, the walls and ceilings literally being covered with specimens. In San Antonio's Mexican quarter may be seen quite a few plazas where every evening the Mexicans gather to eat, converse, sing and dance. Right in the city, the little cook stoves are set up in the open and there the meals are cooked and served. A drive through that section was most certainly worth while.

Leaving San Antonio, we passed through Fort Sam Houston, covering many acres of ground and one of the biggest army posts in the country.

Austin, the state capital, seems to be just a big country town and, on the way toward Mississippi we passed through many other large towns, apparently still in the country stage.

From San Antonio until a few miles out of Corsicana we passed through some rich farming country. As far as the eye could see the land was under cultivation and, to one unitiated into the mysteries of farming, everything looked excellent for a good crop year. From the road, we could look down cotton and corn rows apparently without end. We were told that most of the rows used to be a mile long but that they had been cut down to half this length to give the animals opportunity to catch their wind.

Texas has a wonderful system of roads. Generally where the roads are not gravel or concrete or asphalt, work is under way to make them hardsurfaced. But we found that Mississippi has no monopoly on bad roads as we traveled over some mighty poor ones in Texas. But in the Rio Grande valley, concrete or asphalt roads are everywhere. But these roads were built with bond issues and payday is coming some time.

On the last day of our homeward trip we breakfasted in Texas, dined in Louisiana, ate supper in Arkansas and reached our homes in Mississippi to spend the night.

A trip through Texas has a tendency to overawe a man living in a state as small as Mississippi. The country seems to be almost boundless. But for one who has never seen it—and we saw just a small part of Texas—a journey through the Lone Star State is well worth one's time.

salvation is inadequate as a remedy, or the Churches are found inadequate as agencies of its expression and administration.

"In the first place, the objective of the churches has been diverted from the simple but glorious task of calling men to repentance for sin and to faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, to that of putting over enterprises that are huge, astounding and world-wide. The individual, the object of God's love and Christ's sacrificial atonement, has lost his value to the churches' ambitious organizers of world movements. He is too petty and insignificant for them. Yet the redemption of the race is only possible by the redemption of its individuals.

"In this same spirit of doing the great and grand, with minor concern for the right, local churches everywhere have built for themselves magnificent and costly plants that will burden their people for years to come and prevent these congregations from accepting their due responsibility for the blessed benevolences and missionary enterprises of the kingdom. Thus has been encouraged a local pride and selfishness that is fatal to the Christian spirit. And along with this has arisen a competition for popular and 'drawing pastors' that has boosted the salaries of the pastors of these conspicuous local churches till they who live delicately are to be found in parsonages as well as in kings' houses.

"Then, since to secure the money now necessary for these ambitious schemes and programmes, persons of wealth must not be offended, the denunciation of sin and the call to repentance has generally been dropped, and the sermon becomes a eulogy of the blessedness of the Christian life and the glories of heaven.

"The mere eulogy of good health by the physician would not go far toward the restoration of his sick and suffering patients.

"And though the world is to be saved by preaching, less and less value is being attached to it, while more and more are the churches leaning to educational processes only. Indeed it is notorious that the churches no longer produce great preachers. A few of these linger from the old generation, but mighty expounders of the Word of God are not found among the younger set. Men who preach the uncompromising gospel are avoided and displaced by those who frequent the clubs and jolly the crowds and are better informed concerning the latest jokes than they are on the Scriptures. Many of them wouldn't know a sermon if they met it in the road. During the last meeting of general evangelists of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, one of the leading members of the Committee on Evangelism, himself formerly a general evangelist but at present pastor of one of the great city churches, expressed serious regret over what he alleged to be the fact, that his great church had sixty-three general evangelists when there was really work for but twenty. Think of that: Sixty-three general evangelists, more than a three-fold overstock for all Southern Methodism!"

WEEKLY HEALTH SUGGESTIONS

By Felix J. Underwood, M. D., State Health Officer, Mississippi State Board of Health.

Progress In Preventive Medicine

"Health is no longer regarded as a matter largely of chance. The complete disappearance of some diseases and the significant recession of others at the command of man bears eloquent testimony to this fact.

"Witness the disappearance from this country of yellow fever, cholera, and smallpox. Witness also the notable reduction which has marked the course of typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever, tuberculosis, hookworm, and diarrheal disorders. All of the diseases combined now cause less mortality than did one of them (tuberculosis) alone twenty-five years ago. Witness further the phenomenal decline in infant mortality and the fall in the general death rate which has measured the lengthening strides of preventive medicine.

"Retaining the benefits of these improvements, however, and the making of further progress against disease depend alike upon the dissemination of knowledge concerning sound, scientific preventive methods. Medical science offers to the people a positive method of preventing diphtheria and yet many thousands of children die every year from the disease. Ten years more of life for the man in the country and in the town, reliable medical observers declare, await the day when people generally begin to take advantage of possibilities already available to them through the good offices of the family doctor and the health oficer."

The basis of health work may be said to be the personal hygiene of the individual. Every person affects a great circle of other persons and the personal carelessness or ignorance of one may spread disease through a whole community.

One person who refuses or neglects vaccination may become the source of an epidemic of smallpox; likewise to neglect sanitation and immunization one may be the source of the spread of typhoid or diphtheria.

Paraphrasing the words of the immortal Nelson, Mississippi expects every man to do his duty.

FIELD MAN EXPLAINS ASSOCIATION'S AIMS

To the Farmers of Grenada County:-

The purpose of this communication is just to give some idea of what the Farm Development Association is doing towards developing dairying and diversification in the Grenada trade district, thereby rendering a direct service to each and every farmer, both white and colored, who will take advantage of this service.

The association has bought, in round numbers, 350 cows and heifers and 6 registered sires and has sold to 55 farmers at a low rate of interest, giving a reasonable length of time to pay for them in small monthly payments. Twelve farmers have paid their cows out in full to date. The association has maintained a representative in the field to advise and help develop the work strictly from a donation fund created by the business men of Grenada at no cost whatever to those who purchased the cows. Now we have a whole milk route running east into Grenada, thence into Winona to the Kraft cheese plant, covered by Mr. W. R. Turnbo, which made its first trip Thursday, April 11, carrying in 16 cans or 571 pounds of milk the first day. Thursday, April 18, just one week from the starting date, 36 cans or 1200 pounds were carried in. Twenty-three patrons were served with quite a number yet to come in and hardly any of whose cows are all fresh.

Now with this service and interest taken by the association it does seem to me that if we ever get away from the one crop system and get on to a plane that will make for us a more productive soil, put us on a cash basis, make for us better living conditions and make our farms more attractive and profitable, we farmers should be loyal to this effort that is being made. As the representative in the field, I shall be glad to work with other farmers in any way that I can be of service. If I don't get around to your homes just when you need me, drop me a card and I will be glad to come any time.

So let's all pull together and put Grenada county in the forefront in dairying in Mississippi.

Respectfully,
W. C. CURLE.

CHARGES DISCRIMINATION AGAINST COTTON FARMER

Columbia, S. C.—Indifference on the part of the Mississippi River Commission to the welfare of the southern cotton planter was charged today by Wade Stackhouse, of Dillon, S. C., widely known in cotton circles.

Mr. Stackhouse said that he had just discovered that the Commission which is empowered by Congress to carry on flood control work at public expense is using imported paper bags, in place of American-grown cotton sacks, for transporting cement for use in building levees, construction of revetments, spillways and other projects under its jurisdiction.

"The prosperity of the south depends largely on the continued and growing use of cotton," said Mr. Stackhouse. "We have serious competition to fight abroad, without being compelled to protect ourself against wasteful competition at home. Instead of helping foster the south's prosperity by requiring that all its cement be shipped in cotton bags of American manufacture, the commission is helping to increase the prosperity of the foreign paper makers by specifying paper sacks. When you build up the paper industry, you build up the Canadian and Norwegian pine industry, and pull down the American cotton industry.

"The Mississippi River Commission might well take to heart what happened here in South Carolina where it was found that the State highway commission was using cement in paper sacks for building the state's roads. The indignation of the South Carolina people soon remedied that state of affairs, causing the commissioners to decide that only cotton bags be used for shipment of cement for construction of roads in that state.

If many of us should take the trouble to let the members of the Commission and Congress hear just how we all feel on this question of cotton sacks, the practice of specifying imported paper bags on jobs that the public pays for would soon cease."

Touching on the relative cost of cotton and paper containers, Mr. Stackhouse said that the public would be ahead on the Commissioner's work if cotton bags were used in place of the bags now specified. To prove his point, he cited the case of New York state which save over one million dollars for using cotton sacks exclusively for transporting the cement for the Cats-Water Works, a project which cost more than the Panama Canal. The saving was made possible, he said because paper bags are good for single trip only, while the average life of a cotton cement sack is eight trips.

Got Up In The Morning Feeling DIZZY

"I BEGAN to suffer with headache and biliousness," says Mr. John C. Malone, of Buena Vista, Ohio. "I had a hurting through the middle part of my body which seemed to come from indigestion. I would get constipated, and then feel all out of sorts. I would get up in the morning feeling dizzy, and everything I ate would disagree with me.

"Someone asked me why I did not try Black-Draught. I found it to be just the medicine I needed. When I feel a spell coming on, I begin by taking a dose of Black-Draught, dry, at night. I continue to take it for several days, and in a short while I am feeling fine. It is all the medicine I need."

Costs only 1 cent a dose.

The Farmers of Kimberly

The farmers of Kimberly were bitterly despondent. The rocky ground was not always productive of even the most meager living, and they were in actual want. Some of them, in desperation, moved away. Others who remained, died in poverty.

And all the time their children were playing with diamonds! But the farmers did not know this. They thought the priceless stones were only pebbles. And they endured poverty and misery with opportunity and wealth within their reach.

Is that what your business is doing? Is it failing to achieve the success you had planned for it? Does the public seem unaware of your efforts? If so, it is because your eyes are closed to the opportunity so near you.

It is hard for one man to battle the world of finance unaided. The world is too crowded, and competition too keen. And this is the reason that printing exists—to help you command the attention of prospective patrons. For good printing gains entrance to every market; and its influence, which is unlimited, has been proven time and time again.

Sentinel Printing will help you find a market for the Diamonds of Kimberly. It is your Opportunity.
